

What to expect after your COVID-19 immunization

It is not unusual to experience some side effects after you get the vaccine. Side effects are typically mild to moderate and usually go away on their own. Speak to your physician if you are concerned.

Share your vaccine pride and encourage your friends and family by using one of our social media filters or posing with your vaccine sticker. Don't forget to tag us and #BCimmUNITY.

Going back to normal life will take time. Even if you have received the vaccine, you must follow provincial health orders and protect others by:

- Washing your hands
- Staying home when sick and getting tested
- Keeping a safe distance from others
- Wearing a mask in public indoor spaces

You will be notified when you are eligible to book an appointment for your second dose.
