

From one roadtrip ...

Based on real-world Fraser Health data

Day one.

A group of people set off together on a summer roadtrip to another part of the province.

Day two to four.

The travellers meet up with others at their destination.

Day five to eighteen.

Back at home, the group returns to familiar routines and the virus spreads even further.

One of the travellers is infected with COVID-19, but doesn't realize it.

There are stops along the way for food, coffee and supplies.

At their destination, they make the most of their vacation ...

A visit to a brewery ...

Out for dinner ...

Back to work.

A trip to the store ...

Back home.

And ice cream.

BBQ with friends ...

Out for coffee ...

Back to routines

A winery tour ...

18

test positive for COVID-19 after the roadtrip or after coming into contact with those who travelled.

64

needed to self-isolate, unable to go to work or to school.