

New and Existing Food Business Operators

Why contact Fraser Health?

Fraser Health's Environmental Health Services are here to help new and existing food business operators to get necessary approvals to start a new business and get resources and answers for any food safety related questions of their existing food business.

All food businesses must obtain approval from Fraser Health prior to operating a business. This includes, but is not limited to – restaurants, food stores, processing plants, mobile food trucks, food service at temporary events and vendors at farmers markets or other temporary markets. Fraser Health Environmental Health Officers are available to assist at any time in the process.

How can we help?

Our website provides useful information for approval and operation of a food business such as:

- Approval procedure for new food operators, including application for health approval, application package for food service, temporary food premises application and more.
- General resources, including translated content, such as templates for food safety plans and cleaning schedules, food safety bulletins, information on what to do in the event of a small fire, power outage, or a boil water notice, a other food safety information signs/posters.
- Links to FOODSAFE courses offered by Fraser Health.
- Contact information for Health Protection offices in Fraser Health to get in touch with an Environmental Health Officer
